I-Search is a project that we present in early November and the students work on until mid-December. Our goal is to teach students to use research tools to find answers to questions. Each student comes up with a question and hypothesis and works to find the answer, if there is one. We find that by having students work on a topic of interest, they learn the tools of research more easily. Here ...

-- that shows students what authority is in matters of learning and invites them to join the author and teacher in the educational movement called "Writing to Learn." To put this book in the hands of all the students in the course is not only to help them carry out an I-Search but to introduce them in a delightful way to the resources and tools of intellectual inquiry -- but one that never forgets the emotional or physical side of human activity. This is a rare textbook that treats students as partners in learning. It shows what it is to take charge of one's own learning and suggests that this move is one that productive people keep making throughout their lives.
